Collective Action Clauses in Motion: Lessons and Challenges for Covid-19 Era Sovereign Debt Restructuring

In this timely webinar, a panel of renowned international experts will reflect on the latest developments of the international financial architecture for sovereign debt restructurings. Under the unprecedented conditions of the Covid-19 pandemic, the market-based legal tools for sovereign debt restructuring developed over the last decade are now being put to a test. Carefully drafted enhanced Collective Action Clauses (CACs) are in motion for the first time. The recent examples of Ecuador and the final negotiations of Argentina suggest that deals can get done. At this crucial point, experts will address the following questions: what are the lessons to be learned? What challenges remain for emerging and developing countries facing potentially unsustainable debts?
